McDonald Says Steel Increase Unjustified

PITTSBURGH (UP) — David J. McDonald, president of the United Steelworkers, said Friday night U. S. Steel Corp. could score a record profit year even if it had reduced steel prices rather than increased them $6 a ton.

"Based on the corporation's own figures . . . (and) the most recent financial report, U S. Steel could absorb the cost of the wage increase for the remainder of 1957, reduce steel prices by $6 a ton . . . and end 1957 with the greatest net profit after taxes in the history of the corporation," McDonald said.

The company, in raising the price of steel, he charged, "seeks to hide its fabulous growth of profits by minimizing them (and) exaggerate the wage increase received by its employes."

'Record Profit'

He estimated that "Big Steel's" profits would amount to about 437 million dollars without a price increase, compared with the previous record net profit year of 370 million dollars.

McDonald said the union-negotiated wage increase plus a cost-of-living adjustment will boost the average steelworker wage next Monday from $2 62 to $2.78 per hour.

"If the corporation were as sincere in its concern about higher prices as it proclaims, it would absorb the equitable wage increase. . . (and) keep steel prices stable," he asserted. He said the $6-a-ton steel increase is the second in the past six months and the 22nd since World War II.

"I recommend that the corporation take a long, hard look at its pricing policies which can only have damaging effects on the entire economy."

McDonald again called on President Eisenhower to establish a committee composed of top union and management officers to keep him informed on the wage-price-profit problem.

Tax Embezzler Gets off Light

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UP)—Leroy W. Porter Jr., former city clerk and earned income tax collector, received a suspended sentence Friday on an embezzlement charge

Porter had pleaded guilty to embezzling $17,000 in tax funds. The money was restored by Mayor T. S. Fitch from his personal funds.

Judge David H Weiner suspended Porter's sentence of 11½ to 2 months after Fitch, who also is president of Washington Steel Company, appealed for clemency. Porter was fined $500, however, and ordered to pay court costs.

Fitch requested that restitution "be a matter of honor" between Porter and himself.

Old House in Gillespie Razed By Stubborn Fire

The interior of a 135-year-old stone house in Gillespie was totally destroyed by fire yesterday.

The condemned building caught fire about 5 p. m. and burned until shortly after midnight.

According to Fire Chief Walter Zelenski, of Fayette City, the fire apparently started in a frame section that had been added to the dwelling. He was unable to give the cause of the blaze.

He said the house was vacant and reportedly owned by Joseph Reggianni and Joseph Frank, of R. D., Fayette City.

The Washington Twp. Fire Department was called after Fayette City fire-fighters met with trouble in keeping up pressure from their trucks.

With the aid of high-pressure pumps from the Washington trucks and help from the Belle Vernon and North Belle Vernon firemen, the blaze was finally extinguished after midnight.

Two Changes in Library Policy Are Announced

Two changes in policy were announced today by the Monessen Public Library.

Beginning Monday, identification cards, good for a three-year period, will be issued to all patrons at no charge. However, it will cost five cents to replace a lost card.

Vivian L. Drake, librarian, said the new method will make it possible for more than one staff member to charge books during busy periods.

It was also announced the library will begin charging books for a straight one or two-week period so that all borrowed books will not be due on any one day as has been the custom, Miss Drake stated.

She also suggested that any lost book be reported immediately. A person will be given two weeks to locate the book and will not be fined during that period. If the book is not found within that time the loser must pay its cost.

Miss Drake said about 5,000 persons are registered at the library on Fifth St.

Highway Safety Laws Bat .583 in Assembly

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state Revenue Department announced today the Legislature approved seven parts of a 12-point administration program aimed at greater highway safety and reducing traffic deaths.

The major casualty was legislation to allow the state police to use radar to detect speed violators. The bill cleared the House but died in a Republican-controlled Senate committee.

The 12-point program, endorsed by Gov. George M. Leader's Traffic Safety Council, rated a .58 batting average in the GOP controlled General Assembly. Bills sent to the governor's desk to become effective Sept. 1, would:

—Require each county coroner to submit monthly reports to the Highway Safety Bureau on each traffic fatality in his county.

—Make it unlawful for any person to sell any safety belt unless of a type approved by the state revenue secretary.

—Authorize the revenue secretary to issue specifications and approval for brake fluid sold in the state.

—Require mental hospitals, institutions and clinics to file with the Highway Safety Bureau reports on admission of patients suffering from mental illness which could render an individual unsafe to drive.

—Authorize the revenue secretary to revoke operating privileges of individuals convicted of being in possession of or selling narcotics.

—Require Pennsylvania school buses to be equipped with emergency warning lights as recommended by the uniform vehicle code.

—Authorize the revenue secretary to issue tentative approval of the manufacturer's report on items and equipment now approved by the secretary.

Other council endorsed bills to fall by the wayside included proposals to permit the Highways Department to set up standards and provide adequate enforcement to combat the glare of lights from private properties and elimination of a contradiction in the Motor Vehicle Code concerning the use of red lights on vehicles.

Sch'maker Widening Plans OK

Monessen City Council held a special meeting yesterday to approve engineering plans for the widening and repaving of Schoonmaker Ave. from Sixth to 17th streets.

Submitted by the Westmoreland Engineering Co., of Monessen, the plans also have been approved by the state Department of Highways in Harrisburg.

The final stamp of approval is expected within two weeks when a highways inspector will visit Monessen for a visual inspection of the proposed plans and project.

Gerald Vitale and Frank Sciullo, of the engineering firm, said they believe actual work on the project would start sometime in late August or early September.

$217,000 Cost

Total cost of the job is estimated at $217,000 with the state paying $146,000 for the paving and the city $71,000 for the widening. The project will begin in front of the First Baptist Church near Sixth St. and end in front of the Pittsburgh Steel Co. Federal Credit Union office near 17th St.

The street will be paved with eight inches of concrete. Sidewalks will be cut back and measure about three feet on each side of the thoroughfare.

Utility companies will begin moving back poles, lines, water and gas mains once the contract is awarded.

Vitale and Sciullo believe the project can be completed within two or three months.

West Brownsville Agreement Called For by Judge

WASHINGTON, Pa. (UP) — Judge Roy I. Carson has urged both parties to attempt an out of court agreement in a contempt suit filed by former Police Chief Mell Deskins against West Brownsville Borough Council.

Judge Carson, who took the case under advisement Friday, indicated that otherwise a decision won't be forthcoming until September.

Deskins, twice "retired" from his job by council action, claims council members are in contempt of a state Supreme Court ruling of last April 22.

On July 31, 1956, he said he was forced to retire against his wishes. He appealed to the high court which ruled in his favor. But on June 4 the borough council reissued its retirement order. At that time, the borough's two-man police force was abolished entirely

Deskins also is fighting to recover $270 in back wages. The attorney for borough council maintains it owes him only $141.50

According to reports, the drivers involved were Josephine Smith, of Charleroi, who received neck injuries; Richard Angelotte, of Monongahela, who sustained lacerations of the forehead, and George Wildman, of Charleroi, who was not hurt.

A passenger in the Wildman car, Barbara Nassar, of North Charleroi, suffered arm and knee injuries.

Youth Killed in Auto Accident

ALIQUIPPA, Pa. (UP)—W. Michael Low, 14, of New Brighton, was killed Friday night in a head-on collision of two automobiles on the Aliquippa-Monaca Boulevard.

The drivers, Mike Martin, Aliquippa, and John McCullough, Monaca, were taken to Rochester Hospital in fair condition. The Low boy was riding in Martin's car.

State police said Martin's auto crossed the three-lane highway into the path of McCullough's car.

Heavy Rains Sweep Through the District

By UNITED PRESS

Heavy rains and stiff winds, which reached gale force in some sections, hit Western Pennsylvania Friday night as the remnants of Hurricane Audrey moved northeastward into Canada.

The rainfall in the Greater Pittsburgh district totaled more than an inch and was accompanied by winds up to 64 miles an hour. Scores of trees and utility wires were downed. The Duquesne Light Company reported at least six 4,000-volt lines, each serving several hundred homes, were knocked down.

High winds blew down the movie screen at Spotlight 88 Drive-In Theater at the junction of Routes 88 and 588, two miles from Beaver Falls. The tubular steel screen was carried 150 feet off its base. One automobile was damaged slightly.

Canonsburg General Hospital and St. Clair Memorial Hospital were forced to depend on emergency facilities when their power was knocked out by the storm.

The rain was heaviest in the Erie area where nearly 3 inches fell since morning. The fall during a three-hour period at night was measured at 1 6 inches.

Hundreds of cellars and sewers in Erie were flooded. Street Department workers were called out during the night to make emergency repairs.

Bridge Washed Out

State police at Meadville reported a bridge on Route 198 between Conneautville and Norrisville was washed out. They also reported minor washouts at several spots on the highway.

The highway was open to traffic this morning, the troopers said.

Sharon also reported minor flooding. The rain there measured 2 9 inches.

Sugar Creek in Venango County reported 2.2 inches of rain. More than a dozen trees in the community were uprooted.

Fallen trees and power lines were general throughout Western Pennsylvania. Corn was flattened in Westmoreland County.

Police in Warren said the storm was responsible for a two-car collision in which Charles O'Connor, 17, of Warren, was injured critically. His car skidded during heavy rain on Route 62.

Supreme Court Upholds Right To Fire Pair

PHILADELPHIA (UP) — The Pennsylvania Supreme Court Friday upheld the right of Governor George M. Leader to suspend two members of the Pennsylvania Turnpike commission.

The action came as the state rested its case in Dauphin County Court in Harrisburg against nine men charged with conspiring to defraud the commission.

In upholding Leader's right to suspend G. Franklin McSorley, of Pittsburgh and James F. Torrance, of Export, the court said "the power of the governor to remove an appointee for cause embraces the power to suspend for is the basis for the Governor's accause."

The court warned, however, that "in any instance where cause is the basis for the Governo's action, whether it be removal or suspension that is indicated, it must depend upon the seriousness of the justification for action."

Both McSorley and Torrance were among 26 who were recommended for prosecution by a special grand jury. Two days after the recommendation, Leader suspended them without pay, effective last Jan 30.

Justice Herbert Cohen, who was with part of the 4-2 majority opinion, declared in his dissenting opinion that the Governor had no right to remove or suspend a member of the commission "at pleasure." Bell was joined in his dissent by Justice Benjamin R. Jones.

'Big' Teen-ager Admits Vestaburg Tavern Holdup

A 15-year-old youth, described by state police as "big for his age," last night admitted holding up the Vestaburg Tavern June 2

Trooper Lou Gazza of Belle Vernon said the Negro youth — already under arrest for the armed robbery of Chuck Wagon Restaurant near Brownsville June 24 — admitted the Vestaburg job under questioning last night.

An adult Negro accomplice who entered the tavern with the youth and forced the occupants to turn over between $300 and $350, is being hunted by police Officers said the wanted man is a resident of Daisytown, near California, but declined to release his name. Identity of the 15-year-old, now being held in Fayette County Detention Home, was also witheld because of his age.

Gazza said the juvenile also admitted burglarizing Orlando's Dairy Bar at Marietta on the same night as the Chuck Wagon robbery. In both June 24 escapades, police reported, the youth was accompanied by two Daisytown boys, each in his early teens, now in custody in Washington County Detention Home.

Only the 15-year-old entered the restaurant however, according to Gazza, waving a long barrelled pistol at three employes and fleeing with over $150

The trooper described the youth as nearly six feet tall and appearing about 18 years old.

Nickerson's Boss to Testify on Missles

HUNTSVILLE, Ala. (UP)—Col. John C. Nickerson's boss is expected to tell a court martial today whether, if given the chance, he would take back the colonel as his missiles trouble-shooter.

After the testimony of Maj. Gen. John B. Medaris, the controversial court-martial of Nickerson for releasing rocket secrets should head for a fast wind-up—possibly late today.

Secretary of Defense Charles E. Wilson, the secretaries for Army and Air and the Pentagon in general, not to mention the aircraft industry, all got down in the testimony.

But not until the 10 - member court abruptly decided to call Medaris to be present for a two-star finale did the trial physically bring in top brass, military or civilian.

Medaris is commander of the Army Ballistics Missile Agency here at Redstone Arsenal where the trial is being held Much of the defense "mitigating circumstances" testimony conducted by special counsel Ray H. Jenkins has dealt with whether Medaris shared Nickerson's feelings over a Wilson decision giving the nod to the Air Force in intermediate missiles.

The obvious reason for calling Medaris was for the court to hear straight from him if he felt the colonel would be of future use if he stays in uniform and out of jail. The penalty conceivably could run up to 30 years at hard labor, dismissal, forfeiture of pay and allowances and fines.

Hundreds Reported Missing

LAKE CHARLES, La. (UP) — The 4th Army threw its full resources into the hurricane - shattered and snake-infested Louisiana coastal area today in an effort to find out quickly how many persons a giant tidal wave killed.

The death toll so far was put at 161, including 11 killed in Texas. The others were killed along the southwestern Louisiana coast, mostly in the fishing town of Cameron, as a nine-foot tidal wave washed from the Gulf of Mexico into the lowland.

The 4th Army ordered every helicopter at Fort Polk, La., into search and recovery service along the coast. It ferried giant bulldozers down the Calcasieu River to turn over water-logged wreckage and see whether there were bodies under it.

Ambulances were shipped to the drying-out coast and a radio network was set up to replace broken civilian communications, so that every shattered town and community could be searched methodically.

Wave Drives Snakes

The tidal wave, surging into bayous, drove thousands of venomous moccasin snakes from brambles into the shattered communities and towns, which are on ground a little higher than the swampland. They were angry and struck at everything in sight.

One woman lost three children by drowning and then had to watch the fourth die from a snake-bite because there was no doctor to treat him.

As the dead were collected, they were stacked in an icehouse at Cameron lest the hot sun putrefy them. Another icehouse was ready at Lake Charles, 30 miles north of Cameron, where identification experts will try to identify and tag them.

Among the refugees sent to Lake Charles and other south Louisiana cities were five babies born at Cameron during the height of the hurricane. Jerry Coron, assistant regional director of the Red Cross in the southeast, said one doctor delivered them in the parish courthouse.

Survivors In Shock

George Holsomback, a pilot who flew back to Houston, Tex., today said survivors were still in such a state of shock that they didn't react normally to the tragedy.

"The people were in such a state of shock," he said, "that they talk of losing their parents, their children, as if it actually had no meaning for them."

"These people walk around in the slop and mud that's all over town," Holsomback said. "They'll ask a neighbor, 'How'd you come out?' The other will answer, 'well, I lost mama and papa' and walk away."

A report from Cameron said the water had fallen back to a point this morning about four miles out of the village. Buses and trucks began carrying the injured and dead to a flooded highway and loaded them on barges for the long voyage to Lake Charles.

President Sends Representative

President Eisenhower, keeping in touch with rescue operations, dispatched former Civil Defense Director Val Peterson to Cameron to get first-hand reports of the disaster.

Eisenhower ordered Peterson to the scene as his "personal repre-

U. S. Building New Army; Packs Power As Never Before

By GALORD GODWIN

WASHINGTON (UP)—The United States is building a new Army —one capable of fighting atomic as well as conventional wars.

The revamping of the Army is so extensive that a new word has been coined to describe its results—Pentomic.

The new Army packs power undreamed of before the advent of the atom as a destructive force. The Army says it has "more than five" different weapons capable of delivering atomic firepower with ranges from a few thousand yards to scores of miles.

Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, chief of staff, has said that through the use of guided missiles, the Army "now has a firepower range that is 14 times greater than that of World War II."

The Pentomic army is one consisting of divisions organized into five combat units equipped with atomic weapons. Each will be capable of quick movement, even by air, and of operating widely dispersed from its companion units as it would have to do to avoid nuclear destruction. Each will be administrauvely self-contained.

Must Overcome Barriers

The old Army division was composed of three regiments, fighting in closely knit formations under tight control from division headquarters.

The generals and the civilians who boss them have been working on the Pentomic Army for 12 years. They have had to overcome age-old barriers that long have limited and retarded military land operations. They have not progressed evenly, but they have moved forward in many areas—firepower, mobility, logistics, and communications.

Taylor said the Army has a guided missile that "will be able to destroy whole formations of hostile bombers." He said progress in developing Army mobility "is good but we are not yet satisfied... we are increasing the number both of helicopters and of fixed wing aircraft... small mobile depots stocking approximately 40,000 selected line items are doing the job (of logistics) successfully... we need more modern communications that will enable us to conduct battlefield surveillance over wide areas."

The American Army according to Taylor, is a deterrent force—deterring war wherever the Army is deployed.

"The presence of American troops along the Iron and Bamboo Curtains, ready to fight if necessary, is a constant reminder to any potential aggressor that he will be met promptly by an American soldier," Taylor said. "That fact is a sobering reminder of the serious consequences which an aggressive adventure would entail."

Taylor said the strength and readiness of the Army must help create in the mind of any potential aggressor the unqualified acceptance of the concept "that aggression inimical to the interests of the free world will be contested and defeated."

This deterrent concept cannot be "mere talk, or bluff, or threat," Taylor said. "Instead, it must be based upon visible evidence of our country's military, economic, political, and moral strength in being.

"It is a visible big stick of integrated strength which carries conviction."

The boss soldier's "visible big stick" is reflected in this makeup of the Army:

—Slightly more than one million soldiers, with some 40 per cent of them serving overseas in 73 countries.

—The reorganization, either accomplished or under way, of these divisions into the Pentomic structure: 101st Airborne, Ft. Campbell, Ky.; 25th Infantry, Hawaii; 1st Armored, Ft. Polk, La.; 1st Infantry, Fort Riley, Kan.; 11th Airborne, Germany; 4th Armored, Ft. Hood, Tex.; and the 4th Infantry, Ft. Lewis, Wash.

—These weapons with atomic capability: 280mm cannon, and the guided missiles Corporal, Redstone, Nike-Hercules, and Honest John. The Army is developing another atomic missile, the Jupiter, to be used by the Air Force. Other guided missiles used by the Army are the Nike-Ajax, Lacrosse, and Dart.

THEY'RE GREAT SHAKES FOR THIS HARVEST — What looks like a field of albino anthills actually is a field of salt mounds at Manaure, Colombia, where some 2,000 Guajira Indians are taking part in the annual salt harvest. The salt comes from sea water which has been evaporating for months. It is bagged for commercial and domestic use. Women harvesters blacken exposed parts of their bodies with pai pai, a liquid made from tree bark, to protect themselves from the tropical sun.

Russia Claiming Another Record

LONDON (UP) — The Soviet news agency Tass claimed today that Russia has built the world's largest hydrological laboratory at Valdai, near the source of the Volga River.

The report, in a Moscow Radio broadcast heard here, said scientists at the laboratory were drawing up programs to develop virgin land, aid forestry and solve biological problems.

Congressional Economy Drive Gets New Lift on Foreign Aid

WASHINGTON (UP)—The congressional economy drive got a new lift today from the House Foreign Affairs Committee's decision to cut 400 million dollars more from President Eisenhower's foreign aid program.

The group took the action Friday despite Eisenhower's repeated warnings that the program he requested was vital to U.S. security and to the freedom of this country's allies.

The committee also voted to limit to one year a proposed new aid fund for loans to underdeveloped nations.

The group approved 500 million dollars for the fund to make so-called soft loans to countries which can't borrow the money from existing international banks.

But it turned down Eisenhower's request to make it a three-year program. Some State Department officials complained the action would jeopardize the entire aid program to underdeveloped countries.

The House group voted to provide $1,560,000,000 in military aid —400 million dollars less than the administration had requested. The committee authorized 700 million dollars for defense support items which was 200 million dollars less than what the President wanted.

The overall cut of 600 million dollars was 400 million more than the Senate already had made in the program.

Other congressional news:

FBI: Supporters of the bill to limit the right of access to FBI files planned quick action on the measure. They hoped to get the bill out of the way before the prolonged fight expected when the civil rights bill comes up July 8.

TVA: Senators from the Tennessee Valley Authority area want to know more about President Eisenhower's choice for a TVA board of directors before commenting on him. The White House announced Friday Eisenhower has selected Deputy Budget Director Arnold R. Jones for the post. Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky.) said he did not know Jones but was "sure the President had good reasons" for picking him.

Soil Bank: A House-Senate conference committee reportedly plans to ask Secretary of Agriculture Ezra T. Benson to impose new restrictions on the 1958 soil bank acreage reserve program. Informed sources said the committee wants Benson to bar farmers from increasing acreage of uncontrolled crops like soybeans if part of their land is registered with the soil bank. Benson earlier had said he was giving "serious consideration" to such a plan.

Weeks: Chairman Emanuel Celler (D-N.Y.) of the House antitrust subcommittee accuses Secretary of Commerce Sinclair Weeks of still violating conflict of interest laws in using unpaid business executives in department jobs. He praised Weeks' order Thursday to discontinue appointing executives to head operating divisions in his department without compensation. But Celler said the order will continue to let them serve as assistant division directors and branch chiefs.

Egypt and Saudi Challenges U. S. On Israeli Ban

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UP)—Egypt and Saudi Arabia challenged the United States today with renewed threats of force to bar Israeli shipping from the Suez Canal and the Gulf of Aqaba.

Egypt's recent acquisition of three Soviet submarines lent new weight to a threat which amounted to little more than words when it was first uttered early this year.

Despite Saudi Arabia's unity with Egypt on the Aqaba issue, there were growing indications here that the oil-rich desert kingdom is heading for an open break with Syria, Egypt's chief ally among the Soviet-aided Arab states.

The strongest restatement of the Suez-Aqaba threat was broadcast from Cairo by Aly Sabri, President Gamal Abdel Nasser's chief political aide, who hinted that Egypt expects the United Nations to support the ban.

"If Israeli ships try to force their way through the Suez Canal or the Gulf of Aqaba, we will prevent them..." Sabri said. "If Israel attempts to obtain foreign assistance in such a move, the outcome will be the same as the outcome of the tripartite invasion."

The "tripartite invasion" he was talking about was the Anglo-French-Israeli attack on Egypt last fall, which was halted by U.N. pressure.

Nerveless Atomic Experts Doubt Repeat of Dud

LAS VEGAS, Nev. (UP)—Three apparently nerveless scientists who disarmed a "dud" nuclear device shortly after it failed to explode at the Nevada test site said today that a detonation failure "will never happen again."

The three clambered atop a 500-foot tower Friday and disarmed the device when a hitch in the firing mechanism halted a scheduled test.

Robert Burton, 35, of the Sandia Laboratory, Albuquerque, N. M., married and the father of two, was credited with the actual disarming. But the two others, Forrest Sairbrother and Barney Rubin, both of the Livermore, Calif., laboratory, played important parts in completing the job.

Burton said he was "not particularly nervous" and that the chances were "about a million to one" that the device would have gone off unexpectedly.

"This will never happen again," Rubin said. He indicated that an electronic alarm system would be installed in future detonation systems to warn of power failures such as the one which stopped Friday's blast.

Plane Crashes Into Another On the Ground

MIAMI (UP) — A four-engine DC7B plowed into a parked Super Constellation on the ground shortly before midnight touching off a fiery explosion which demolished both aircraft and part of Eastern Airlines' terminal here.

Both aircraft, valued at $5,000,000, were owned by Eastern.

The airline reported that there were no passengers involved and the crew of the DC7B escaped without injury. The airline said there was no one aboard the Constellation.

The raging fire within minutes lighted up the hangar area at the huge Miami international Airport. It was hours before firemen finally put out the blaze and kept the sparks from spreading to other aircraft.

The DC7B, a 350 m.p.h. plane recently inaugurated by the airline, had been on a routine local training flight. The plane was taxiing to the maintenance hangar when it collided with the parked Constellation.

Witnesses said that when the DC7B hit the parked plane, a violent explosion occurred, shooting a geyser of flaming gasoline into the air and showering the terminal wing with flames.

Scientists Hope to Put Fallout to Some Good

WASHINGTON (UP)—Scientists said today they hope to get some good out of evil fallout by using it to trace vast air movements which determine earth's weather.

This was disclosed at a symposium being held here on the eve of the 66-nation International Geophysical Year (IGY) which formally begins this week end.

To date there have been approximately 135 nuclear explosions. Around a score have been giant H-bomb blasts which hurled large amounts of radioactivity into the high atmosphere.

Dr. Henri Bader, a member of the U.S. panel on glaciology, said year-to-year fallout is locked in snow layers of Greenland and Antarctica which can be 'precisely dated.'

Radiological analysis of the snow layers thus "will yield most valuable data on general atmospheric circulation since the first bombs were exploded in 1945," Bader said.

Dr. Sigmund Fritz of the panel on meteorology also said bomb radioactivity may serve "as a useful tracer for studying movements of air masses and large-scale circulation patterns."

More than 150 fallout stations will provide data showing how radioactive materials have drifted around the world.

State Rests Case in Turnpike Trial

Move for Dismissal Is Made

HARRISBURG (UP)—The state has rested its case against nine defendants charged with conspiracy in an alleged multi-million dollar swindle of Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission funds.

Defense attorneys immediately indicated they would ask Judge Homer L. Kreider to dismiss the charges in demurrer pleas after holding a private conference with the judge before resumption of trial.

The Commonwealth presented its 20th witness Friday and then ended its presentation after deciding against further reading into the trial record of the testimony of the defendants before last winter's special grand jury which recommended their indictments.

Defense attorneys said they were particularly hopeful that the conspiracy charge against former commission legal counsel Theodore S. Paul, Harrisburg, would be thrown out by the court. They pointed out that Paul's name was rarely mentioned during the four weeks the state brought its case before the jury, except by his own lawyer.

The testimony of one of the defendants, former commission engineer John D. Paul was read to the jury this week, but the prosecutors said they decided to save the rest of the secret grand jury testimony for cross examination of the defendants when and if they appear on the witness stand.

The final state witness was George D. Oswald, Dunmore, former superintendent of the Rogers Construction Co., Scranton.

Oswald was identified as one of the engineers who supervised mine-flushing work on the Northeastern Extension, through which the state charges te defendants attempted to bilk the commission of $19 500,000

To Prevent Cave-ins

The mine-flushing was aimed at preventing subsidence of the roadway where it traverses anthracite mines in Lackawanna and Luzerne counties by supporting the mines with silt pumped into the voids through holes drilled down from the surface.

The state charges the Manu-Mine Research and Development Corp., Reading, which drilled the bore holes into the subterranean voids, obtained the contract for the work illegally and realized a 100 per cent profit.

Oswald, under indictment but not on trial, told the court and jury Friday that 60 per cent of the holes drilled by Manu-Mine were unusable for flushing. Many of the holes, he said, did not give access to the voids, while many others were blocked by fallen dirt after they were drilled.

The other 40 per cent of the bore holes, he added permitted the pumping of nowhere near the amount" of material which had been estimated as necessary to support the mines.

He said the Rogers firm had contracted to pump about 650 000 tons of silt into mines in one section of the roadway, but that holes drilled by Manu-Mine received only 150 000 tons.

He said the Turnpike Commission was billed for 363.000 tons of flush material at $1 71 a ton.

Manu-Mine president Charles W. Stickler Jr. and his uncle, former Commission Chairman Thomas J. Evans, Coaldale, are charged with conspiracy for their part in the negotiation of the contract.

Also on trial are suspended Commissioner James F. Torrance, Export, former commission finance director Paul J. McNeill, and E. J. Donnelly and G. J. Hudert, both associated with the J. E. Greiner Co., Baltimore, former turnpike consulting engineers.

State Aid For Adults In Doubt

HARRISBURG (UP)—All state aid for adult education classes in local school districts may have been banned by the recently-adjourned Pennsylvania Legislature.

"We're not absolutely certain," Robert T. Stoner, director of the Public Instruction Department's Bureau of Adult, Vocational and Practical Arts Education, said. "We're raising the question of what was the Legislature's intent with the state Justice Department. But the wording of the measure appears to have knocked out aid for adult education."

The General Appropriation Bill earmarks $2,100,000 for "extension education, including recreation." But it further specifies that none of the money is to be used for "adult education or adult recreation, except for the blind."

Given for Study

"Extension education is adult education," Stoner said.

The Justice Department has handed the question to Deputy Attorney General Elmer T. Bolla for study. Bolla was not available for any opinion on the problem.

Virtually all adult education classes are night courses in the various school districts. All would be knocked out unless the local district decided to continue such programs without state aid.

An informed source said Republican lawmakers intended originally to bar only adult recreation aid so as to eliminate "fringe" courses such as basket-weaving, etc. But they feared such activities then might be classified as "adult education" and for this reason decided to make both education and recreation activities for adults ineligible for state subsidies.

Bomb Scares Subject To Stiff Fines, Jail

HARRISBURG (UP) — Thrill seekers setting off bomb scares would be liable to a heavy fine and jail terms under legislation signed by Gov. George M. Leader.

The new law makes it a misdemeanor to "give false information concerning the placement or setting of a bomb." Offenders would be subject to fines up to $1,000 and a one-year jail sentence.

Among other legislation signed by the governor late Friday were measures:

—Protecting the rights of school employes near the retirement age who have indicated their preference for inclusion in the integrated Social Security - Public School employes' retirement system. School boards are banned from exercising their option to terminate the services of such employes on their reaching the age of 62 until they could become eligible for the benefits of the merged pension system.

Detroit Group's Wheeling Bid For Race Track Is Approved

WHEELING W. Va. (UP) — Hazel Park Racing Assn of Detroit tucked its new deed in the vault today and prepared for its first season as operator of Wheeling Downs Race Track.

The Detroit combine purchased the half-mile oval Friday for $1,780,000, the highest bid accepted by Federal Judge Harry E. Watkins.

Watkins turned down a bid of $1 830,000 from stockholders of Yonkers Raceway, N.Y., "in the best interest of all." He questioned why the New Yorkers waited until the last minute to put their price tag on the track seized by the federal government to satisfy a portion of the $3 280 000 tax claim against William G. (Big Bill) Lias.

Hazel Park opens the 1957 season at Wheeling Downs on July 10 with the blessings of the West Virginia Racing Commission. The meet continues until Sept. 24 and returns from Oct. 19 until Nov. 16 for the fall running.

James E. Bellanca vice president of the Motor City group, plunked down a check for $1,680,000 to close the deal, giving it final title to the track on Wheeling Island in the Ohio River. Hazel Park had deposited $100,000 when it first submitted its bid June 21.

Watkins, in rejecting the higher bid from the Yonkers owners, declared, "If they were going over the (Hazel) bid, they should have done so last week."

"The Hazel Park group," the judge said "has spent a lot of money and time and has complied with all the conditions of the sale. It would have suffered real damage if the court had not confirmed the sale."

Lias, who sat mum during the court proceedings as he saw his property go on the block, declared afterwards, 'The price is unfair. I absolutely unfair. I could have sold it for $2,500,000." About 60 per cent of the purchase price goes towards Lias' federal tax bill.

Government in The Black for Second Year

WASHINGTON (UP) —The government, for all practical purposes, closes its books on the business year today with a surplus of more than one billion dollars.

It marked the second straight year that Uncle Sam's bookkeepers stayed in the black. But there were no shouts of joy because experts estimated the surplus would run less than President Eisenhower had predicted.

The President last January forecast a budget surplus of $1 700,000.000

The Treasury will not come up with a final accounting until later this month. But experts estimated the surplus would be somewhere between $1,600,000,000 and $1,200.000.000.

The fiscal year actually ends at midnight Sunday. But since no business is transacted on Sunday, the business year for all practical purposes closes today.

Four Japanese Troops Hiding Out on Island

MANILA (UP) — The Japanese Embassy awaited word today of contact with four Japanese still hiding out near Mount Matutun in the belief the Pacific War is still on.

An embassy spokesman said he expected a group of Filipinos to reach the Japanese ex-soldiers in Cotabato Province, in the southern Philippines. He said the embassy had promised the Filipinos a monetary reward if they could make contact with the four Japanese.

Japanese Ambassador Morio Yukawa told defense and armed forces officials that his government was anxious to repatriate the ex-soldiers safely.

Yukawa estimated that there are from 100 to 300 Japanese stragglers hiding out in the mountains of the Philippines.

Man Admits to Hatchet Slaying

PITTSBURGH (UP) — An 80-year-old man confessed to police today he killed another elderly man with a hatchet during an argument last Wednesday, Allegheny County detectives said.

The hatchet slaying of Dushon Radokovic, 70, was discovered by Swissvale police when they went to his home to investigate a complaint involving Cornelius Rodgers, 80, who lived with the victim.

The police found Rodgers sitting in the kitchen. After a few minutes, he led them into another room where they found Radokovic's body on the floor. There were two deep gashes in his head.

Rodgers admitted the slaying under questioning, detectives said. He was charged with murder.

sentative" to coordinate relief measures.

The President also threw "every possible federal facility" into rescue-relief operations.

Sheriff O. B. Carter of Cameron said "4,000 people were in the area before the hurricane struck but 15 per cent were evacuated."

"There are about 1,800 people in Cameron and outlying areas," Carter said. At least 300 to 400 are stranded by high water and food and water has been sent to tide them over until help can reach them."

Hundreds Reported Missing

Carter said helicopters, amphibious Ducks and barges were being used in areas still under water.

Major Gen. Raymond Hufft, Louisiana's adjutant general, said 150 bodies had been counted at Cameron. There were from 200 to 300 persons missing and the Red Cross was caring for 40,000 homeless.

Earlier 11 persons had been counted as hurricane victims in Louisiana and Texas before the disaster at Cameron was made known.

One survivor, red-bearded J. A. Singletary, 65, of Cameron, blamed newscasts for the town's ill fate. He said he had his television set on until midnight Wednesday night and picked up a news report that there would be "absolutely no danger until tomorrow afternoon." Instead the water started rising at 1 a.m. Thursday.

Cameron was put under martial law. Looting was reported. Civilian and military agencies rushed in at the direction of the White House and Eisenhower to guard the wreckage.

Steel's Posture

THOSE steel company executives whose decisions set the pace for the industry apparently do not feel that President Eisenhower's recent appeal for restraint in pricing policies had any reference to them. Two days after the President's quite pointed comment, the U. S. Steel Corp. announced an across-the-board price increase of $6 a ton.

The officials of other steel companies who have made any public observations about U. S. Steel's action have said only that the increase should have been higher.

It is not part of the duties of the President of the United States, thank goodness, to fix the price of steel. And Mr. Eisenhower certainly does not covet any such power.

But it seems to us that the amenities of the situation called for a slightly longer interval, at least, between the President's appeal and the U. S. Steel action. For public relations reasons if for no others, the industry might better have given the appearance of weighing Mr. Eisenhower's considered views as expressed to his press conference on Wednesday.

The steel industry has become such a me-too and follow-the-leader aggregation in recent years that it is probably foolish to hope or think that some of the other companies may do anything but parrot the U. S. Steel action. E. T. Weir seems to have been about the last of the really independent characters in steel.

But big and basic as it is to our economy, steel cannot afford to take a public-be-damned attitude — or even seem to take such an attitude. Yet that is approximately the posture it has assumed in the minds of many people as a result of what has been said and done this week.

Why the Delay?

WE TRUST the traffic congestion in downtown Monessen this week has been sufficient to remove any remaining doubt that something must be done immediately to alleviate it.

The most obviously necessary move is to eliminate curb parking on at least one side of Donner Ave. in the principal business section. This has been recommended by at least two of the expert surveys that have been made of Monessen's traffic problem and has been under consideration for more than a year by the responsible city authorities and their advisory groups.

Why the delay in doing something so patently necessary? Is there anyone in the city's business or official life who can't see that the downtown district is choking to death? And is it not only a question of time until this strangulation begins to affect property values just as it already has affected retail business?

Admittedly it takes some courage to make decisions of this nature, even when they are based on expert study. There is a good deal of inertia to be overcome in meeting most civic and governmental problems.

But Donner Avenue's predicament amounts to an emergency. Traffic cannot move over it because it is being used as a parking lot, and moving traffic has to have priority on every thoroughfare. And since traffic cannot move, people who can do so are avoiding downtown Monessen.

How much plainer does the situation have to be before the required action is taken?

A Real 'Pro'

A SINGULAR honor was paid Thursday night to one of Pennsylvania's really first-rate politicians — George Bloom, the Republican state chairman.

Mr. Bloom was the honor guest at a testimonial dinner in his hometown of Washington, Pa., and as an indication of the kind of affair it was, the Democratic state chairman, State Sen. Joseph M. Barr, was the toastmaster.

The reasonable cause for honoring Mr. Bloom was his interest in the State of Israel, which organization he has aided in one way or another.

We don't know what Mr. Bloom has done for Israel. But we know that he has done a great deal for Pennsylvania and for the United States — much more than would be required to earn a dinner in his honor.

George Bloom is a political "pro" in the best sense of the term. He knows the game inside out and he plays it hard and fair.

Politics is the important, he plays it for keeps and out of honest conviction that what his party stands for is right and best for the state and for the nation.

This would be a very different country in many respects and the political profession would enjoy better public standing if every person to whom the term "politician" is applied were cast in the same mold as George Bloom.

Merry-Go-Round—

Millionaires In Tangle On Inflation

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Secretary of the Treasury George Humphrey made a serious tactical error at the start of the current inflation hearings.

Gaylor Freeman of the First National Bank of Chicago was called in for Treasury strategy conferences even now to combat the Senate investigation. He and Undersecretary Randy Burgess recommended that Humphrey meet fire with fire, that he blast the senators. Old Treasury hands advised against this, urged if possible not to make extravagant claims.

Mr. Pearson

He scorned their advice, sided with Burgess and Freeman. Freeman then wrote the long political statement which Humphrey read into the record claiming the fiscal moon, the stars and most of the financial universe for the Eisenhower administration.

This was just what Bible-pounding Sen. Bob Kerr of Oklahoma and other Democrats were looking for. They have been firing back, picking Humphrey's statement full of holes ever since.

Most amusing cross-examination in years has been Kerr's roughing up of Secretary Humphrey. Humphrey, long accustomed to being salaamed to by business tycoons, complains privately at being cross-examined by a two-bit millionaire from Oklahoma.

Whether Humphrey or Kerr has more millions is a debatable point. Humphrey's wealth is in uranium, iron ore, paint, rayon, steel and bonds. Kerr's wealth is an $100 million worth of oil and gas lands.

The wealth of both men has benefited from tax favors. Humphrey's companies have got tremendous write-offs from Uncle Sam, and those located in foreign countries don't pay taxes in the USA. Kerr, likewise, has had healthy benefits through the 27½ per cent oil depletion allowance.

Regardless of who is wealthier, Kerr and Humphrey have been going at each other hammer and tongs — partly because Humphrey's big business advisers advised him to lead with his political chin.

In Smoke-filled Rooms

The famed Morgenthau diaries have been declared classified by Senators Eastland of Mississippi and Jenner of Indiana who run the Senate Internal Security Committee. Just why remains a mystery. Senators probed the Morgenthau diaries to see if they could find dishonesty by employees who worked for the ex-Secretary of the Treasury, but their search was fruitless. Now historians want to examine the diaries, all on file at FDR's Hyde Park Library, but the two senators say no. Arthur Schlesinger, the Harvard historian and ghost writer to Adlai Stevenson, did get a look at the diaries but he was back. Other historians are banned. . . Morgenthau made a note of almost everything he said from sneezes to talks with FDR and his 900 volumes of notes are a historian's paradise. . . George Allen, Ike's golfing friend and business partner in Howard Johnson restaurants, refers to the new Dulles secretary of State as follows: "Chris Herter is a good army pitcher. He was coached on him." Those inside the State Department, however, say Herter is doing a fine job. He's a slow starter. But he has recreated State Department morale as never before under Dulles, has brought back staff conferences for the first time since Dean Acheson's exit. . . The White House had so much trouble finding a new chairman of the Federal Communications Commission that it's going to Commissioner Doerfer by default. About 20 people turned down this key job which hands out million-dollar TV permits. Retiring Chairman McConnaughey and other GOP commissioners have pressured the Commission into too much politics. . . Corrections: In connection with the recent report of congressmen who took free trips to the Dominican Republic and became apologists for Dictator Trujillo, it should be noted that the expenses of Congressman Donald Jackson (R., Calif.) were paid by the House Foreign Affairs Committee, not by Trujillo; and that the expenses of Congressman Pat Kearney (R., N.Y.) were paid by E. Christianberry, proprietor of the Jaragua Hotel, who has close business ties with Trujillo. Neither congressman accepted the proffered money from Trujillo. . . Some of the gears made to block the civil rights bill are now being made. . . Congressman Howard Smith of Virginia, dean of the Southern bloc, has warned Democratic Leader Joe McCormack that he will keep for time before getting the Democratic platform out of his House Rules Committee for a vote of the full House. . . Smith had earlier promised to block the pro-merger notification bill requiring corporations to notify the Justice Department 60 days before corporate mergers — if Congressmen Multer of New York and the NAM would back off. . . Congressman Smith is now free to do so.

Rights and Responsibilities

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WILLIAMSBURG, Va. — It seems a fantastic attitude, this cool, unenthusiastic, substantially indifferent and overly cynical response of most of the governors to President Eisenhower's proposal to do something practical about restoring the balance of state - versus - federal power.

Mr. Drummond

Here for the first time is a serious, earnest proposal to reverse the trend by which power and authority have been flowing from the state capitals to Washington for a half-century.

Here for the first time is a modern President who has the detachment which comes in part from not being able to run for another term who has the convictions to match his detachment and who is offering to return to the states concrete areas of taxation and responsibility which the federal government has pre-empted.

And what is the principal behind-the-scenes reaction here at the governors' conference?

Question Proposals

That the governors passed a resolution saying it was just a dandy idea. They will appoint a committee to talk with representatives of the President. Not a corporate word is spoken in the open.

But I doubt if any of the 100 news and radio correspondents here found other than that — that some of the governors questioned the sincerity of the President's proposals, that others questioned their practicality, that the governors of most of the old and more prosperous states have so much on their hands that they don't really feel much encroachment by the federal government and that numerous of the governors of the smaller, less prosperous states would rather talk volubly about recovering state's rights than doing something hard about it, would prefer both to preserve the issue and to keep the flow of federal money coming into the states.

The result of this state of mind was that Mr. Eisenhower got a restrained — bordering on cool — reception. His proposals, far from being acclaimed with enthusiasm and a determination to pick them up and show that the states really want to reassert the role of political power which flows to Washington, seemed to be about as popular as a stowaway at the captain's ball.

Big Obstacles

I am not suggesting that it is as easy to carry out the President's suggestions as it is to make them. There are some high and hard hurdles between talking about recapturing powers by the states and accomplishing it. A nice rounded resolution won't do it.

We need to bear in mind that Mr. Eisenhower did not propose to return to the states taxing powers and functions, whether in the field of disaster relief, urban renewal or slum clearance — and then have nothing happen.

He proposed that several functions which the Federal government now performs be returned to the states, together with the necessary taxes, with the assurance that these functions will be faithfully and effectively carried out.

To do less than this would not deal with the problem of states' rights at all. It would merely recreate the same vacuum which caused the people to turn to the federal government in the first place.

It's idle" the President pointed out "to champion states' rights without upholding states' responsibilities as well."

This is why not a few of the governors who talk most reverently about states' rights are cool to the President's concrete proposals. They are not really desirous of taking on the states' responsibilities as the price of recovering the states' rights.

Another Factor

There is another factor which makes it difficult for any of the governors to keep the mayors from running to Washington to plead with the federal government to help with slum clearance and urban renewal. They by-pass the governors for a very strong reason.

The reason is that the governors, however willing, can't get the legislatures to appropriate money to help the cities because the rural sections of every state in the union are disproportionately represented in the state legislatures and thereby dominate the legislatures to the disadvantage of the under-represented cities.

But surely the end is worth the effort if the governors do not take advantage of this offer to redress the balance, it will be a long time before such an opportunity comes again — if ever.

Proves Again Fact Stranger Than Fiction

By UNITED PRESS

The dispelling of the mystery surrounding a favorite legend is often a thankless task. Nevertheless James A. Michener and A. Grove Day have set out to portray factually the people and places of the south Pacific that have grown into legends through the years.

In their book "Rascals in Paradise" (Random House), pirates and admirals, confidence men and lady explorers, all come under the merciful scrutiny of the authors. Their tales were written with sympathetic understanding and a scholarly desire to winnow fact from fancy. In the process they succeed admirably in proving again that fact is often stranger and more entertaining that fiction.

Too Many of Valley's Leaders 'Transients'

By HARRY R. PORE Jr.

The death of Ernest T. Weir this week set me to thinking, as I often have before, of how much we have missed in the Monongahela Valley because none of our industrial leaders have established permanent homes here and used the Valley as a base for further operations.

Mr. Weir, as you know if you have read the accounts of his life, spent a couple of years in Monessen in the first decade of the 1900s.

And he was, of course, the most prominent of our former residents, the only other one of comparable stature being W. H. Donner, a steel man and financier who died at an advanced age a few years ago in Philadelphia.

But many substantial fortunes have been made here over the years both by individuals who actually lived in the community for a time and by others who, though they lived elsewhere, were principally involved in local industrial enterprises.

Without any exception that I can think of, however, these people were transients so far as the Valley was concerned. They were on their way someplace — up or down or out. And for them as well as their families the Valley was a way-station, a temporary stop-off.

I can't help thinking that we have missed a good deal by this. And not just from an economic standpoint, either, although certainly that is a factor. But towns which have been the home bases of successful people — in any line — have about them an aura of tradition and personality which seems to me to be something of value.

Weir an Executive Here

Mr. Weir left a salaried executive position here and went to West Virginia to go into the steel business on his own. And he wound up establishing both the Weirton Steel Co. and the city of Weirton.

Weirton is a little too much a "company town" for my personal taste, but you cannot visit it even for a few hours without being much impressed by the civic and social consciousness of the man who founded it and who continued throughout his life to call it his home although he actually lived in several other places.

Of course, the Ernest T. Weirs do not come along often, and it is pure happenstance when one lights long enough to do what Mr. Weir did in and for Weirton. It doesn't hurt to dream, but it isn't very likely to occur.

But I don't think it's dreaming to expect that one day some of our prominent industrial people will come to see the desirability of establishing homes in the immediate area where their important investments and responsibilities are centered. They may come to understand, as Mr. Weir did, that there is a relationship, albeit a rather subtle one, between real satisfaction in business success and personal physical identification with the scene of action.

Many Successful

Many of the transients who have used Monessen as a way-station have achieved business success so far as success can be measured by the accumulation of money. A few have left us their names on our streets, which always seemed to me a dubious honor for them and a not very profound tribute from us. But without many exceptions, they or their descendants cannot say that a distinctive and lasting contribution was made to the development of the community where success was achieved.

Some readers may feel that I am being over-sentimental about this. Some of my industrial friends have also tried to explain to me how it is impractical for any but the second and third echelon managers to live in the vicinity of the mills and that other executives must live in metropolitan centers.

I confess to some sentimentality. But I am far from convinced on the other point. I can think of too many situations in which industrial leaders have done it the other way with notable results for their companies, for themselves and for the communities involved. There are too many such examples for me to be persuaded that it can't — and shouldn't — happen here.

Fringe of Pond Is Entrancing Place

By JOHN H. DAY

The old-field meets the pond all along for a mile or so. It lays its lip to it but drinks only here and there. It drinks deepest of all in a cove. The two mingle so gently that the trespassing countryman hardly knows where the old-field leaves off and the cove begins. Approach the cove from the old-field side on foot and you will be splashing about deep in it before you know you are coming to it at all, so well do the old-field bushes, standing to their knees in the cool water, screen it from you.

The shrubs of the old-field love to come down and paddle their feet in the pond water, and sun themselves in the sheltered, fragrant air. The afternoon sun has more opulence here than elsewhere. It abounds with fervent flashes of elastic city from the glossy leaves of the bushes that have waded out farthest and made islands of themselves.

The high bush blueberries are the most daring of all and stand in the largest clumps farthest out. These, late in May with an offshore wind, shower the whole surface of the water with their fallen corollas. Sometimes the cove will be white with them on Memorial Day, as if the bushes, standing with bowed heads, strewed the waves with memorial flowers for the old-field people who have died at sea.

Elms Shed Seeds

Earlier in the year the elms have made the whole surface of the cove brown with their round, wing-margined seeds, and after the memorial flowers of the blueberry bushes are gone the maples will send out thousands of two-sailed seed boats, reddening the whole surface with their argosies as they go out to sea, wing and wing. Now in early summer all these things have passed and the surface of the water is clean again, to dimple with the under-water swirl of a minnow-hunting bass or lap lazily against the canoe with the dying undulations of the waves from outside.

Just outside the bush fringe, where the maples are mirrored in undulations, the surface insects of the cove whirl and skip, each according to his kind. Of these probably the best known is the whirligig beetle, the "lucky bug" of eager young anglers. He is a third of an inch long, almost as broad, oval, a sort of stream-lined speed boat, waltzing continually with his fellows. Round and round they go in a mazy whirl that would make you dizzy if at the last gasp they did not reverse.

All boys who fish know that the bugs early stores of luck within their hard shells. For one even to approach your line in his mad waltz is a sign of coming success. Should he actually touch the line and cling, it presages a big fish. To propitiate the gods in most definite fashion before you cast line you should catch several lucky bugs the more the better, bury them on the bank with their heads to the shore, and recite over them this incantation:

"Bug, bug, bug
I've spit on the worm I dug;
Bug bug, give me my wish.
A great big string of great big fish."

Properly managed, this has never been known to fail. If it does it is because you have buried one or more of your bugs bottom up.

Not Easy to Catch

It is not easy to catch a lucky bug, however. He always keeps up a full head of steam and he can dart away in a straight line with all the concentrated fury of a torpedo boat. Moreover, he is convertible, and when completely surrounded by his enemies can become a submarine and dive straight for the bottom and stay there. He must have an oxygen tank, for he doesn't come up until he's good and ready, when he appears fresh and hearty and ready for another waltz.

The afternoon dreams down from its pinnacle of hazy heat to the soft level of eventide. Under the pines of the west side of the cove the level sun slips in and seems to caress the trunks, while the tops above sing a little sighing song of contentment. The old-field birds wake up their preludes of evensong, and the sun now glorifies all the quivering canopy green leaves through which it shines with a luminous diaphanous quality which makes magic all along that side of the cove. Down this shimmering illusion of leaves lies the molten pathway to the land the king's son saw in the Arabian Night's tale.

ON THE BALL

Lignelli Assistant Prof at Clarion

Frank Lignelli, who coached the Monongahela High soccer team to WPIAL titles the past two seasons, has been named assistant professor in physical education at Clarion State Teachers College. He will also serve as assistant football coach. Lignelli was quite a gridder during his college days at Clarion, being named to the Little All-American team back in 1949. Prior to the arrival of Al Cree, he coached the Monongahela High footballers for a season . . . The current issue of Sporting News has a story on Bob Prince and the red Bermuda shorts he wears on road games . . . The old Brownsville Independents — one of the district's most feared football teams back in the 20's — will be honored this fall by the community's Elks Club.

* * *

The Philadelphia Phillies will conduct a tryout camp at Bailey Park in Uniontown next Friday and Saturday. Boys 16 to 22 are invited to attend. Scouts Cy Morgan and Earl Hite will be in charge . . . Ed Szmakowiak, 16 year old Har-Brack High football star, just missed drowning in the Allegheny River the other day. The 190 pound tackle, who is not a good swimmer, was dumped into the river when the canoe he was riding tipped over. Syzmakowiak was held up in the water by 17-year old Ed Pietrolaj, a teammate, while another youth, Jerry Messinec, of Brackenridge, pulled them both to safety.

Debate Over Little League Baseball

There's quite a debate over Little League baseball in the current issue of Sport Magazine. Opposing the program is Tommy Henrich, the former Yankee who started his professional baseball career in Monessen. Says Henrich: "Basically my complaint about Little League baseball is that it doesn't fulfill the prime goal we should have in mind when we send our kids out to play ball — to let them have fun. Little League, in my opinion, is too well organized by adults, and unconsciously the adults are taking too much of the fun away from the kids." . . . Defending the program is Bob Feller, who argues: "As far as I'm concerned, any small defects the program may have are considerably outweighed by the positive contributions it has made to our children, and, in a sense, to the entire country."

* * *

Incidentally the Monessen LL program is experiencing its finest year. All eight teams are pretty evenly matched and the races in both divisions are both exciting and close . . . Happily the city Little League organization is blessed with some standout adult leaders . . . The West Newton Lions Club will sponsor a giant "Gymkhanna" for sports cars on Sunday, July 14 at Baughman Field. The event is expected to attract at least 100 drivers from the tri-state area, including Ed Hugus, internationally known racer who is now enroute to the U. S. from France where he won new laurels in the famous 24-hour LeMans race.

County Sixth in Fishing Licenses

Westmoreland County ranked sixth in the number of resident fish licenses issued in 1956. No less than 24,957 licenses were sold to county residents. Allegheny County led the list with 83,739 sales. In all, 710,635 resident licenses were sold throughout the state . . . Bob Mastracci, the hard-hitting Monessen Ozark outfielder, is sidelined with a charley-horse which may keep him out of action the rest of the season. Manager Pappy Johnson is coaxing Mastracci to take over the team as a non-playing manager. Johnson wants to play, not manage, and he is anxious to have Mastracci assume his duties.

Babe Zaharias Still Tops to Her Husband

By OSCAR FRALEY

MAMARONECK N.Y. (UP) — Fearless Fraley's fairway facts and figures from the U.S. Women's Open golf championship:

George Zaharias, husband of the Babe Didriksen is all shook up at Tommy Armour because the famed silver Scot said that young Wiffi Smith is a better player than the Babe.

The Babe could give Wiffi four a side and knock her brains out," George allowed bitterly. "There was never anybody like the Babe and we'll never see another like her. As I can say is that some people forget mighty easily."

Ed Carter, who runs both the men's and ladies' professional golf tours, has a big problem. A nationally known industrialist has offered to post $200,000 for a pro tournament—if the gallery is permitted to move, talk, take pictures or do as it chooses while the players are swinging or putting.

Pay To Watch

This man feels that the golfing spectators are just a bunch of suckers. He'd pay that kind of money not to watch the pros play. Doug Ford could take it but how about such pitchers as Sam Snead and Tommy Bolt?

Peggy Kirk of Southern Pines, N.C., leaped out of bed so exuberantly Friday morning before the second round of the Women's Open that she dislocated a rib. An x-ray failed to be called for, and she was -and she scored a second 78 for 36 which qualified her easily for today's two final rounds.

Patty Berg, the veteran of the ladies tour, knows all the angles of traveling — except one. She locked herself out of her automobile and had to break a window to get in. For the job she used the putter which let her down with an 80 in the first round. Now," she said, "we're even."

Good Friends Now

Betty Jameson and Jackie Pung, the well - upholstered Hawaiian golfer, are good friends now but there was a day.

When Jackie first hit the ladies tour she was quite some overweight and one of her first appearances was on a mountainous California course which caused her to pant and heave mightily. Miss Jameson, playing in a two-some with her, finally asked the gasping Jackie to move farther away on the green so her panting wouldn't be annoying while Betty was putting. When Jackie went home for a visit and was asked whether it was tough on the pro tour, she replied:

Tough? Why one girl even asked me to stop breathing."

Sugar Ray Signs To Meet Basilio In September

NEW YROK (UP) — Odds-man Eddie Borden today tabbed Carmen Basilio the 13-10 favorite to beat Sugar Ray Robinson in September.

Robinson, 36, will defend his middleweight title against welterweight champion Basilio, 30, in a 15-round bout at a New York ball park. Promoter Jim Norris said it would be either at the Polo Grounds, Sept. 16 or 17, or at Yankee Stadium, Sept. 23 or 24. The exact site and date will be decided soon.

Norris, who closed the match Friday, believes that the federal court will permit his staging the fight because it was in the process of negotiation before last Monday's order by Judge Sylvester J. Ryan to break up the International Boxing Club monopoly.

Norris finally granted Robinson his demand for 45 per cent of all net receipts from the gate, theatre-TV and movies. But to do that the promoter had to pare 5 per cent off the 25 for which Basilio already had signed.

No Risk

Only Sugar Ray's 160 - pound crown will be at stake. Carmen of Chittenango, N.Y., will not be risking his 147-pound title.

If Sugar Ray keeps the title in September, he may retire "undefeated" and become an actor, he said. If he loses, a return-bout contract grants him another shot at the crown in February, and he'll take the shot, with each getting 30 per cent.

Norris believes the September receipts from gate and theatre-TV will exceed 1 million dollars. Although he claimed he hadn't decided definitely on home-TV or theatre-TV, it was learned authoritatively the show houses will have it.

Busso Upsets Larry Boardman

BOSTON (UP) — Unranked Johnny Busso looked in the direction of lightweight champion Joe Brown today after dumping contender Larry Boardman by the wayside.

"The first thing we want is to be ranked," said Busso's manager, Nunzie De Lucia, after the Astoria, N.Y., lad's unanimous decision over Boardman Friday night in a nationally-televised 10-rounder from Mechanics Building.

"But we want Brown and we'll take him," said De Lucia.

Boardman went into the bout a slight favorite and was looking to a title match with the elusive Brown. However, the 23-year-old Busso switched places with the 21-year-old Marlboro, Conn., lad, knocking him down twice and going on to carve out a popular decision in a rough and tumble scrap.

Leader Signs Archery Bill

HARRISBURG (UP) — Gov. George M. Leader has signed legislation eliminating the requirement for archers to have an antlerless deer license for hunting in the bow-and-arrow season.

The bill also specifies that a bow-and-arrow season must be scheduled in any year in which a regular deer season is held.

Cows perspire very little and barns must be constructed so that cows will not suffer under hot temperatures and humidity.

Ozark-West Newton Game Is Postponed

Apparently last night's Mon Valley League game between the Monessen Ozarks and West Newton was postponed.

At any rate, the game wasn't played.

Oddly enough, West Newton showed up at Ninth Street Park with 11 players. The Ozarks were there with just three.

The umpires talked things over and decided to postpone the game a short time before it was to start. That decision probably saved the Ozarks a forfeit loss.

In recent weeks, the Monessen boys have been slipping deeper into the league standings. They are currently tied for sixth place.

Still Monessen has a chance to make the playoffs. And Manager Pappy Johnson is confident that the Ozarks will do just that.

Early Win Streak

Monessen started the season by winning four games in a row. Johnson is hoping that his club will recapture that old form.

On Monday the Ozarks will go to Perryopolis to try to start a new win streak.

Other Monday games will send Fayette City to Charleroi, Van Voorhis to New Eagle and Donora to West Newton.

Valley League standings follow:

Crowe, Bell Are Not 'Pouting'

CINCINNATI (UP) — George Crowe and Gus Bell of Cincinnati aren't pouting at being left off the National League All - Star team.

Lopped off the All-Star team by a special ruling Friday, Crowe and Bell each hit homers in Cincinnati's 7-1 victory over Philadelphia Friday night. Crowe hit his 14th homer with two on and Bell connected for his eighth homer with the bases empty.

Frick Dissatisfied After Eight Cincy Players Win Poll

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEW YORK (UP) — A new system for picking All-Star players will be introduced next year and all signs point to a limiting of the fans' voting power.

The new system, in the process of being worked out now, will carry the backing of baseball Commissioner Ford C. Frick, who made his dissatisfaction with the present system obvious Friday when he readjusted the results of the fans' votes for this year's All-Star Game.

"Something had to be done," Frick said, when a last - minute deluge of 55,00 ballots from the Cincinnati area created a situation wherby eight Redleg players would have started against the American League All-Stars in St. Louis, July 9.

Three Redlegs Dropped

So, after telephone conversations with National League President Warren Giles and American League President Will Harridge, Frick ruled that only five Cincinnati players — the same number of Redlegs who started for the NL last year — would be in the opening lineup this year instead of eight.

Frick's action, unprecedented in the 24-year history of the All-Star Game, resulted in first baseman George Crowe, center fielder Gus Bell and right fielder Wally Post of the Redlegs being dropped from the starting lineup and quite possibly from the All-Star squad.

Designated to start in their places were first baseman Stan Musial of the Cardinals, center fielder Willie Mays of the Giants and right fielder Hank Aaron of the Braves, each of whom finished runner-up at his position.

Frick's move was generally applauded in baseball circles.

The commissioner pointed out that the rush of Cincinnati ballots just before Thursday's midnight deadline had "resulted in a team which would not be typical of the National League and which would not meet with the approval of fans the country over."

Honesty Unquestioned

Frick stressed that his action was "no reflection on the sincerity or honesty of the Cincinnati poll," but he explained their 550,000 ballots were "greater than the total number of ballots cast by all other sections of the country for a similar period."

Without really meaning to, Frick actually named the National League's All-Star team.

The five Cincinnati players who will start are Johnny Temple at second base; Roy McMillan at shortstop; Don Hoak at third base; Frank Robinson in left field, and Ed Bailey will catch. Brooklyn manager Walt Alston, who will pilot the NL All-Stars, will choose the pitchers and the reserves.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Wide Stance

The overly wide stance gives a feeling of power, but it's too easy to get the feet so far apart that the body turn is restricted.

When your body turn is restricted, the arms swing on back and the right elbow gets behind the right hip. That can lead to anything — except a good golf shot.

Here is a way to guage a stance that will give you sufficient base and still permit enough body turn: With the driver, which calls for the fullest swing and the greatest body turn, let the stance be just a little wider than the width of the shoulders. About an inch on each side, say.

Then the stance narrows very slightly as the clubs graduate downward — until, with the pitching wedge, the heels are about two inches apart.

Page Nine Wins in LL Action

Eric Crabtree slammed two home runs to pace Page Local to an 8-5 win in Little League action last night.

Three other games were called off because of wet grounds. They will be played tonight.

One of Crabtree's circuit clouts was described by onlookers as the longest of the year and one of the lustiest in Little League history here.

Bill Tweardy earned credit for the pitching win even though he needed help from the versatile Crabtree.

For the Ravens, John Tweardy led the way with a pair of doubles.

Today's schedule will show the Elks against CIO and Lions against the Legion in National Division play at the Stadium. In the American Division, Park Service will meet VFW at the Annex.

Donovan, Spahn Win Own Games

By MILTON RICHMAN

Pitchers normally are supposed to be "out men"—guys who can't hit their weight at the plate—so Dick Donovan of the White Sox and Warren Spahn of the Braves rated some kind of special salute today for batting as well as pitching their teams to first place.

Donovan's ninth - inning single gave the White Sox a 4-3 victory over the Senators and kept them tied for the American League lead with the Yankees, who defeated Kansas City, 5-4, Friday night.

And Spahn cracked out the 18th homer of his career in addition to pitching a five-hitter against the Pirates in a 4-2 victory for the Braves that enabled them to take over the National League lead.

Hal Jeffcoat of Cincinnati, a reformed outfielder, had the best night of all as far as hitting pitchers are concerned. He drove in three runs with a two-run homer and a double in a 7-1 victory over the Phillies.

Jeffcoat hurled a four - hitter while George Crowe contributed a three-run homer and Gus Bell homered with the bases empty to help boost the Redlegs to within a half-game of the top. The only run off Jeffcoat resulted from Harry Anderson's homer in the sixth.

In other games, the Giants knocked the Cardinals out of first place by beating them, 4-1, while the game between the Dodgers and Cubs was rained out.

Baltimore tied an American League record with its fourth straight shutout as Ray Moore hurled a three-hitter in blanking Cleveland, 6-0, and Boston took over fourth place from Detroit by beating the Tigers, 9-2.

Donovan's game-winning single scored fleet Jim Landis from second base and sent Bud Byerly down to his third defeat. Donovan was credited with his eighth victory although Paul LaPalme and Dixie Howell relieved.

Ancient Enos Slaughter came through with an eight-inning pinch single to score Hank Bauer with the winning run in the Yankees' triumph over the Athletics. Woody Held and Hector Lopez each homered for the A's. Bob Grim registered his eighth win in relief.

Spahn obtained quite a bit of help in his victory over the Pirates when battery - mate Del Crandall connected for a three-run double off loser Bob Friend in the second inning. Spahn had a no-hitter until Roman Mejias singled in the sixth.

Curt Barclay held the Cards to seven hits until the seventh, then weakened and had to be bailed out by veteran Marv Grissom. The Giants got to loser Larry Jackson for two runs in the first inning and then nicked him for their final two runs in the fourth.

Moore's shutout over the Indians gave the Orioles' pitching staff a string of 41 consecutive scoreless innings. The four straight shutouts by the Baltimore staff tied the AL record held by the Indians of 1903 and 1948 and the Yankees of 1932. The Orioles clinched the game with a four-run rally in the sixth when the Indians committed three of their six errors.

Billy Klaus hammered in five runs with two homers and pair of singles to help Tom Brewer to his ninth victory. Loser Duke Maas of the Tigers gave up 10 of Boston's 15 hits. The only two runs off Brewer were bases-empty homers by Charley Maxwell and Frank Bolling.

Milwaukee, Nips Pirates, 4 to 2, On Five Hitter

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (UP)—Five-hit pitching by Warren Spahn plus a three-run double by Del Crandall proved a winning combination Friday night as Milwaukee defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates, 4-2.

In addition to Spahn's sparkling pitching, in which he held the Pirates hitless the first five innings to win his eighth game of the season, the veteran left hander cracked the 18th home run of his career.

A double by Frank Torre, an error by Dee Fondy and an infield hit by Felix Mantilla filled the bases off Pirate starter Bob Friend in the second inning. Crandall scored all three with his double to left center.

The Pirates got their first run in the sixth on a double by Dick Groat and a follow-up single by Fondy. The other Pirate run came in the ninth on a single by Fondy and a double by Gene Freese.

Pirate third baseman Frank Thomas was absent from the game with an arm injury received in the Chicago game Thursday.

Friend was lifted in the sixth inning for a pinch hitter and replaced on the mound by Johnny O'Brien. It wa sthe ninth loss of the year for Friend.

White Sox Beat Yankees, 10 to 7

White Sox scored six runs in the first inning, then hung on to beat the Yankees, 10-7, in Minor League play yesterday.

Andrew Temoshenka slammed a pair of doubles to pace the winners. He also came on in relief to earn credit for the pitching decision.

Hawks Defeat Hilltop, 12 to 8

It took the Blackhawks an extra inning to trip Hilltop, 12-8, yesterday and thereby stay atop the Prep League standings with a perfect 5-0 record.

The two teams were tied at 8-8 after regulation time. Triples by Mike Kunsa and Dick DiBiaso broke the game wide open in the eighth inning when the Hawks shoved over four runs.

Kunsa also had two singles to his credit. For the losers, Ken Bronson checked in with three hits.

Bragan Still Thinks Giants Are 'Worst'

Pittsburgh Pirate manager Bobby Bragan still thinks the New York Giants are "the worst team" in the National League.

However he's ready to admit that Giant manager Bill Rigney is doing the league's "finest managerial job."

"I said all spring, the Giants were the worst team in the league and were a cinch to finish last," said Bragan. "Right now, I've got to admit Rigney is doing the finest managerial job in our league. He's got his club to a point where it is only six and a half games out of first place, and that is a real tribute to Rigney's great leadership."

As for the merits of the Giants, Bragan said:

"They are still the worst team in the league — just a mere seven and a half games out of the cellar."

You Can 'Live in Color' with Pittsburgh Paints from Derby's

Pittsburgh paints, sold for years by Derby's Construction & Supply, 443 Donner avenue in Monessen, permit you to "live in color."

You can put wonderful colors to work in your home — right now, easily, accurately!

All you do is follow the simple, flexible principles of COLOR DYNAMICS.

This revolutionary system of painting — developed by the Pittsburgh Plate Glass Company — establishes rules of harmony which will help you create many interesting effects through the use of color.

It is a fact that the energy in color affects you. Best known and highly important are the psychological effects of colors.

Some of the psychological effects of color are distance, size, visability, warmth, and coolness. Color can change the distance and size of objects, and even make them seem to change weight. It can help you see objects more clearly, or make them less distinct. It can help to make you feel warmer or cooler.

Now, when you apply the principles of COLOR DYNAMICS, there's no more guesswork in your home decoration. It takes into consideration what each color can do for the interior or exterior of your home.

Red, for instance, is exciting. It is warm, vibrant, intense, compelling.

Yellow is cheerful. It is stimulating to the eyes and nerves. Associated with sunlight, it is often used as a morale-building color.

Green is as refreshing as the great outdoors. It is the most tranquil of colors, neither exciting nor subduing.

And blue is restful, soothing. It is a cool color, often related to water and sky.

Thus, you see, by using colors properly you can create emotional responses. And by following the principles of COLOR DYNAMICS you can adapt each room interior, or the siding and trim of the exterior, to the particular mood you wish.

But where to start? Well, if you considering redecorating the interior of your home, the easiest way is to start thinking about your walls.

The walls are usually the largest area in a room and generally they are the principal background for your furnishings. Therefore, walls provide you with a real opportunity to use color to make a dreary, drab room cheerful and attractive.

And bear in mind the character of the room you wish to redecorate. Its size. Its use. Its architectural features and limitations. How much natural light it gets and how much and what kind of artificial light. The existing colors of rugs, upholstery, drapes, and other furnishings.

Your living room may be where you do most of your entertaining. By careful choice of color you can give the room a soothing, relaxing atmosphere. Your kitchen can be bright and stimulating. Your bedrooms — restful. Your recreation room — gay and charming.

Of course, if you're about to paint the exterior of your home, then you start by choosing color for the siding. Take into consideration the character of your home? Does it have one or two stories? Is it wide or narrow? Is it surrounded by shady trees that eliminate much sunlight . . . is it out in the open in full view of the sun? Well, whatever its character, you can give your home a new, vibrant look of beauty and friendliness when you choose colors that highlight its features and camouflage its shortcomings.

For further information about DESIGN C-439-F, write the Small House Planning Bureau of Canada, St. John, New Brunswick.

Leave Some Jobs to Pros When Building

If you build your own house, you probably should leave some jobs to professionals but you should also know the fair prices for those jobs in your vicinity, says a new book for "do it yourself" home builders.

The book, "How to Build and Contract Your Own Home" by Larry Eisinger, says that most do-it-yourself builders should subcontract the roofing, plumbing, electrical wiring, installation of basement stairs and construction of a fireplace.

Eisinger estimates that in an average home of 1,500 square feet a plumber's labor represents 55 per cent of the cost, materials 45 per cent. An electrician gets $3.25 to $4 an hour, so that 60 per cent of electrical costs represent labor and 40 per cent materials.

A plasterer can be hired by the hour or by the square foot of the area he plasters. The cost comes to between 20 and 26 cents a square foot, with about sixteen bags of materials used each day.

The book, published by Fawcett and on sale at newsstands, says that professional ceramic tile installers charge $1.40 or more for each square foot of tile laid.

With 50 per cent of the kitchen cost represented by appliances, Eisinger suggests comparative shopping for cabinets. The average, he says, is about $2.50 to $3 a lineal inch of wall length. An eight-foot wall length of upper and lower cabinets costs about $240 to $290 installed.

Plumbing Must Be Installed With Much Care

Improperly installed plumbing can permit 'back-siphonage," the mixing of waste water with the fresh water supply. "Cross-connections," joining the waste and supply lines, also endanger family health and safety.

Municipal plumbing codes regulating the installation of plumbing have been developed by health officials who have long recognized the absolute necessity of complete separation of drainage piping from water supply piping.

Unfortunately, "do-it-yourself" handymen are not familiar with the principles of safe plumbing and may unknowingly imperil the health of their families.

To prevent "back-siphonage," the National Association of Plumbing Contractors recommends that all faucets be installed so that the tip of the faucet is at least one inch above the maximum possible water level in the sink or tub it supplies. Otherwise, a sudden drop in pressure may create a vacuum in the supply line which will suck waste water into the fresh water system. Where faucets cannot be located, an approved type of vacuum breaker must be installed in the supply line behind the faucet at least four inches above maximum water level in the fixture served.

For maximum health protection, advises the NAPC, all plumbing work should be done under the supervision of an experienced plumbing contractor who not only knows and observes plumbing code regulations but who is familiar with the sound reasoning behind such codes.

Versatile Wood

Ponderosa pine is the most versatile wood found in abundance in North America. Because of its lightness, strength, easy workability, and clear grain, it is used extensively for fine windows, doors, and wood cabinets.

Shrubs for Home Planting Have Varied Uses

Shrubs for home plantings are useful for a number of purposes-flowering effects, foliage, specimens, hedges, and others. In selecting materials for planting, Associate Westmoreland County Agent Dale P. Jackson says it is wise to keep in mind the use and effect you wish to obtain.

He says among the best of the lower flowering deciduous shrubs are Fragrant viburnum, Burkwood viburnum, Lemoine's deutzia, slender deutzia, and buddleias. There is an abundance of larger flowering shrubs such as Van Houtte's spirea, golden bells, weigelas, the taller viburnums, and others.

There are many broadleaf evergreen shrubs that are particularly useful in home plantings, Jackson continues. Among these are the rhododendrons — including the native and hybrid forms. Also consider the azaleas, or honeysuckles. Add to these the fetterbush (Pieris japonica) and you have a wide assortment from which to choose.

Ventilation Important To Prevent Moisture

Ventilation of attic and crawl spaces is important to prevent accumulations of moisture as well as to keep a house cool in summer. Louver openings are the most popular because they will shed rain while allowing for air circulation.

Prefabricated aluminum louver units in certain standard sizes are available at most building supply yards. If you prefer the appearance of painted wood louvers or need larger openings, it is a simple project to make your own.

First measure the size of the window or other opening to determine the over-all dimensions of the frame members, cut slots ¼-inch deep and 7-16-inch wide at 45 degree angles, as shown in the diagram. These slots are easy to cut with a back saw and miter box. After sawing to the proper depth they can be chiseled out.

Make the slots no more than 3 inches apart in order to get effective protection in a driving rain.

Slats to fit in these slots are made from ½ by 4-inch stock. Bevel the edges of the slats to obtain a complete unit face that is flush with the frame. Nail the slats in place with small finishing nails and fasten the frame together with both glue and wood screws.

The inside of a louver opening can be screened with ¼-inch hardware cloth to keep out birds and squirrels and you won't detract materially from ventilating efficiency. But if you use insect screening, you should double the size of all openings because of its interference with air movement.

An old rule for ventilation openings for an attic is 1 square foot of opening for each 300 square feet of floor space. This minimum usually is not sufficient under modern standards. It's wise to figure on much more.

Dry Basement Assured with Few Precautions

When building a new home, you can assure yourself of a dry basement by making a few simple precautions around the exterior foundation, says the new newsstand book, "How to Build and Contract Your Own Home."

The book, published by Fawcett, recommends routing water that may collect on the outside of the house away from the foundation walls.

"This can be done effectively by laying agricultural drain tile along the outside of the footing, setting the one-foot lengths with about a ½-inch crack between them and covering the crack with a strip of 15-pound roofing felt," it says.

"A six to 12-inch layer of 1 to 2-inch gravel over the drain tile will prevent mud from clogging up the cracks. All water seeping to the footing depth will eventually find its way into the foundation drains. Lead the drains around the corners so the water seeps away from the walls."

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Joseph Bucci, who died eight years ago today, June 29, 1949.
Loving memories never die
As years roll on, and days pass by.
Deep in our hearts a memory is kept
Of one we loved and will never forget.
Friends may think we forgot you
When at times we seem to smile,
Little do they know our sorrow
That the smiles hide all the while
We think of you in silence
No eyes can see us weep
But many silent tears are shed
While others are asleep.
A smile, a tear, a thought sincere.
How often we wish that you were here.
Sadly missed by son, daughter-in-law and grandchildren, Mike, Helen, Cindy and Michael, Jr.

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Joseph Bucci, who died eight years ago today, June 29, 1949.
A precious one from us has gone
A voice we loved is stilled,
A place is vacant in our home
Which never can be filled.
God in His wisdom has recalled
The boon His love had given,
And though the body slumbers here,
The soul is safe in Heaven.
Sadly missed by Wife and Children.

In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Joseph Bucci, who died eight years ago today, June 29, 1949.
When life threatens to make us blue
We cling to a memory to carry us through.
Feeling that somewhere you are standing by
Ready to help when you hear us cry
And so dear father your life of love
Is a precious treasure from Heaven above
Your grave we tend with loving care
For part of our heart is buried there.
Sadly missed by Daughter Elizabeth, Son-in-law Antnony and Granddaughters.

Ike Is Posted On Hurricane Audrey Disasters

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (UP)—President Eisenhower kept fully posted today on the disasters left by Hurricane Audrey.

The President, giving instructions by telephone Friday night from his Gettysburg farm, threw "every possible federal facility" into rescue-relief operations for Louisiana and other Gulf Coast states struck by the hurricane.

Former Civil Defense Director Val Peterson prepared first-hand reports for Eisenhower on the extent of the damage and the measures being taken to cope with the disasters.

The Chief Executive directed Peterson to fly to the scene Friday night as his "personal representative" to coordinate relief measures.

Presidential Press Secretary James C. Hagerty planned to relay Peterson's findings and other reports as they were received at the White House to Eisenhower at Gettysburg. Hagerty scheduled a news conference to fill them in on Peterson's report.

The hurricane developments interrupted the President's long weekend holiday barely before it began. The Chief Executive drove up Friday afternoon with Mrs. Eisenhower and they had looked forward to a quiet few days and the celebration Monday of their 41st wedding anniversary.

Billy Graham Says no Short Cuts to Heaven

NEW YORK (UP)—Evangelist Billy Graham said Friday night that the quickest and easiest way to heaven is to "take up the Cross and follow Jesus Christ.

The 38-year-old North Carolinian said "There is no bargain counter to the Kingdom of Heaven, there are no short cuts to success—it takes training, it takes work."

He told a Madison Square Garden audience of 15,500 persons that when man shops for sin or salvation he finds that "sin is bought on the installment plan and it costs you your life in hell forever."

Graham told the story of the rich man who asked Christ how he could attain eternal life

"Jesus said, 'Go sell all you have give the money to the poor, and take up the cross and follow me,'" Graham said.

He added that becausea ll men are offered salvation through Christ, "all of us are rich," but too many people have chosen other forms of riches.

Graham said that his Saturday night coast-to-coast telecasts (8-9 p.m. e.d.t., ABC) had been extended through July 13, andt hat through them, his New York Crusade "has really become a national crusad for Christ."

Chinese Reds Hail Little 'Red' Hen

LONDON (UP) — The Chinese Communists today hailed a little "red" hen for exceeding production norms.

The hen, according to a Peiping broadcast, has been laying three eggs every two days since February.

And, the broadcast said, the eggs are "larger than the usual size."

The hen is owned by an agricultural cooperative in Mongolia, according to the broadcast monitored ere.

Mayflower II Facing Strict Schedule in N. Y.

NEWPORT, R.I. (UP) — The Mayflower II faced the most difficult task of its trans-oceanic voyage today in trying to meet a strict New York reception timetable.

The 92-foot replica ship was scheduled to depart from its third port of call, Newport, this morning on the final leg of a trip that has been alternately two weeks late and two hours early.

The Mayflower II, due to start in a huge land-sea-air reception at New York Monday morning, will be towed the 124-mile distance with scheduled off-shore stops designed only to keep the ship on the reception timetable.

Staid Newport was shocked and somewhat embarrassed when the Mayflower II pulled into port three hours ahead of its scheduled arrival Friday. Instead of the planned full-scale welcome, the tiny ship was towed to a point in Newport Harbor with scarcely a whistle.

The early arrival was in marked contrast with the 12 week delay in the ship's arrival at both Provincetown and Plymouth, Mass., on its 54-day ocean crossing.

Capt. Alan Villiers, explained the early arrival as the result of a strong following tide as the ship was towed through the Cape Cod Canal.

Nigerian Leader on Trial in Ring Theft

LONDON (UP)—The Hon. Thophilus Owalabi Sobowale Benson, floor leader of Nigeria's Parliament, is being tried here on charges of stealing a diamond ring and a wrist watch from a faithless fiance who ran away with another man after she had been bought and paid for as a bride.

Benson appeared in the Old Bailey Criminal Court at the opening of the trial Friday clad resplendently in a white silk suit with a gold dragon embroidered on the jacket and gold lace at the ankles.

Jacob Odulate, Benson's prospective father-in-law, flew here from Nigeria to confirm his story that Odulate's daughter Folake moved to England and married Dr. Torialo Solanke after Benson had paid $140 for her hand.

The parliamentary leader visited his former sweetheart when he came to London to attend the recent Nigerian constitutional convention. He told the court that he "found her very affectionate" during the London visit.

The prosecution charges that he took the ring and the wrist watch with him when he left Mrs. Solanke's home.

Benson told the court that he is already married, but added that that makes no difference.

"Native law allows me as many wives as I like," he said.

The trial continues Monday.

Portland Mayor Found Innocent

PORTLAND, Ore. (UP)—Portland Mayor Terry D. Schrunk was found innocent of perjury Friday by a jury of nine women and three men after slightly more than two hours deliberations.

Schrunk had been accused of perjuring himself to the Multnomah County grand jury in denying that he accepted a bribe from the operator of an after-hours club in Portland when he was sheriff in 1955.

New Developments in Medicine

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

A new long-acting sulfa drug, a mild laxative and an anti-convulsion of value in treating certain types of epilepsy are some of the medical advances I would like to tell about in this month's report.

The new sulfa drug is sulfamethoxypyridazine. But let's be practical and call it by its trade name, Kynex.

The major advantages of the drug are its greater solubility and slower rate of excretion. These qualities enable recuction of the required daily dose of Kynex by 75 per cent when compared with many of the sulfa drugs normally used.

Kynex is reported effective in the treatment of genito-urinary infections, dysentery, respiratory infections and rheumatic fever. There has been one case where the drug reportedly helped to cure a patient of pneumonia which had been caused by organisms found resistant to all available antibiotics.

Let's also use the trade name of the new laxative, Doribantyl. It is a combination of dioctyl sodium sulfosuccinate and 1 8-dihydroxyanthraquinone. Doctors report that it achieves easier bowel evacuation, produces no noticeable evidence of sensitivity or toxicity and does not seem to result in accumulative action or habituation.

Incidentally, development of this laxative was actually started because of a picture appearing on the cover of a national magazine. The photo showed a duck sinking in water made "wetter" by addition of a synthetic agent.

Researchers at the University of Michigan experimented and found that the agent's wetting action resulted in a softening and bulking of hard fecal masses by promoting penetration and retention of fluids within the lumen of the bowel. By combining this agent with another, the new laxative was produced.

Celontin is the new anticonvulsant found effective for petit mal epilepsy seizures. These are brief seizures of only a few seconds duration in which the patient's eyelids or eyebrows twitch. He may stare vacantly and act slightly confused for short periods following the attack.

The scientific name of this drug is just as confusing as the others, maybe even more so. N-methyl-a-methylphenylsuccinimide. It took five years to develop Celontin and another five years to test its safety. It is available only through prescription.

'Gunfight' as Movie Is More Fiction Than Fact

By ALINE MOSBY

HOLLYWOOD (UP)—"Gunfight at the OK Corral," starring Burt Lancaster and Kirk Douglas, is a current boxoffice smash, but the movie is more fiction than fact.

The film tells about a famous gunfight that actually took place in Tombstone, Ariz., Oct. 26, 1881, with U.S. Marshal Wyatt Earp played by Lancaster, his brothers and friend Doc Holliday (Kirk Douglas, mowing down a gang of cowboy rustlers headed by the Clanton and McLowery brothers.

In the movie the Earps notify the cowboys they will shoot it out brother, Morgan. After the bloody to avenge the death of Wyatt's story Lancaster rides off into the sunset to woo Rhonda Fleming in California.

But the real life story, as told in Western history books, is even more dramatic.

Actually, the Earps surprised the cowboys in the corral as they were preparing to leave town. The Earps were gunning for the gang, not because of a murder, but because each side accused the other of masterminding a Wells Fargo stagecoach holdup.

The town of Tombstone was divided—and historians still are—over whether the Earps murdered the cowboys before they had a chance to throw up their hands or whether the Earps fired only after the cowboys reached for their guns. (The Earps were supposed to be arresting the cowboys on a charge of illegally carrying arms. Historians say only two were armed, and legally, as they were riding out of town.)

Tombstone's anti-Earp newspaper, The Nugget, charged the Earps were murderers. However, another paper, The Epitaph, published eyewitness accounts describing the fight as an even, fair gun duel.

Mohawk Indians Return to the Lands of Ancestors in New York

FORT HUNTER, N. Y. (UP)—The Mohawk Indians are back in the valley where their ancestors slew many a white man. But not a tomahawk is showing.

This time, the Indians will fight their battles under "the white man's laws" and, if necessary, they'll even go to the United Nations.

The 1957 Mohawk "raiders" have picked a spot in the shadow of the New York State thruway. So far that's been neither a problem to them or to the authorities. The Indians can't be seen from the heavily-traveled superhighway.

The Mohawks claim about 8,000 acres along Schoharie Creek, near this village, on the ground that the land was never sold to the white man or covered by treaties.

One state official in Albany admitted he doesn't think the state owns the land. But there is farmer Frank Buckman, who holds the deeds. Buckman believes the Indians are 'squatters."

More Indians Due

Some 35 to 40 chiefs, braves, squaws and papooses have set up housekeeping in a few teepees and tents in the creek - side fields. More are due to arrive.

They don't have much — some their tribal regalia, a few tables and an old canoe. A couple of the men have jobs on the thruway. Others were reported to have gleaned a few dollars from curiosity-minded tourists.

But the Mohawks are determined to make new homes for their families on their old lands. A longhouse is under construction so they can worship.

In the midst of the teepees stands that familiar item of the white man's culture—a baby carriage.

The reason for the Mohawk migration is the St. Lawrence Seaway. The Indians contend it has "destroyed" parts or all of the reservations in northern New York and Canada to which they were shunted many years ago.

Believe In Right

They didn't like the reservations, anyway. They got little or no compensation for being "displaced." And they're convinced they have the right to return to the valley bearing their tribal name.

Spokesman for the Mohawks is a 24-year-old, 210 - pound chief, named Standing Arrow, who heads the Turtle clan. He goes barechested and wears a single white feather in his hair.

"All we want is to live here in peace, to be our own independent people as we used to before the white man came," Standing Arrow said. "We are friendly people. We don't come now with tomahawks and spears. Now we will use the white man's laws."

He said that "when the white man began burning our villages and raiding our people at night we turned northward.

"We settled in the northern part of the state and in Canada. Then came reservations where the Indians were herded together in lands they did not like."

Broke His Promise

The white man, he said, "broke his promise in these treaties when he took them (the lands) from us and paid us nothing."

State police check daily to see that thruway property is not obstructed. They say the Indians are "minding their own business." What visitors there have been have had to reach the Indian settlement over a half-mile footpath.

"If the state government does not give us what we want, then we are prepared to go to the United Nations assembly," declared Standing Arrow.

He expects more Indians at the camp each day. Some who have left the reservations have found jobs in cities and visit the Mohawk "village" on weekends.

The Turtle chief has a stack of documents of 18th Century treaties, pamphlets on codes of the six nations and letters written to government officials about the Mohawks' plight.

Dangles from Smokestack for 90 Minutes

WASHINGTON (UP)—A 66-year-old steeplejack dangled head-down from a smokestack for 90 minutes Friday when strong winds flipped him over and fouled his rigging.

He came down from the 80-foot smokestack "cussing up a breeze" because rescuing firemen cut his ropes.

"Now I can't go back to work until tomorrow," said painter Mike Brummett.

The veteran steeplejack said he has fallen dozens of times and has broken most of the bones in his body. But, he said, "I don't ever tell my wife about it" after a fall.

Although the steeplejack plans to go on working for a while, he is looking forward to retirement on a farm.

"I'm going to get me a shotgun, a 'coon dog and some fish hooks and let the rest of the world go by," he said.

Giant Aerial Review Honors Gen. Twining

WASHINGTON (UP) — The greatest peacetime aerial review in history was assembled today to honor Gen. Nathan F. Twining in ceremonies at nearby Andrews Air Force Base.

Twining's four-year tour as Air Force chief of staff ends Sunday. He will become chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Aug. 15. He will receive an Oak Leaf Cluster on a Distinguished Service Medal in a ceremony before the aerial review.

The Air Force massed 272 aircraft ranging from old World War I Jennies to the latest in jets to participate in the flyover.

A Jenny was to lead the armada, one of the nation's first flying machines. Next in line were a Spad, a P12, an F51, a B17, a B29, a T37 jet trainer, and a supersonic F101.

A KB50 refueling tanker and three F100 Super Saberjets were scheduled to put on an aerial refueling demonstration. A similar exercise with a new KC135 four-jet tanker and an eight-jet bomber was to follow.

Then a flight of 12 C130 cargo planes, propeller type, were to lead these jet planes: 30 B57s, 24 F88Ds, 24 F102s, 24 F100s, 24 F86Hs, 96 B47s, and 24 B52s.

Five missiles also were to be shown on the ground — the Falcon, Matador, Rascal, Bomarc, and Snark.

After the 34-minute flyover ceremony, the F100s, B47s, B52s, and B57s—weather permitting—will fly over Baltimore and Philadelphia at 5,000 feet.

Philippines Want American Sailor Back for Trial

MANILA (UP)—The Philippine government has demanded the immediate return here of an American sailor who was sent back to the United States and discharged despite a pending criminal case before a local court. The charges stemmed from a highway accident.

Acting Foreign Secretary Raul Manglapus made the demand in a strongly-worded note Friday to new U.S. Ambassador Charles E Bohlen.

The note demanded that George E. Roe be brought back to the Philippines and placed within the jurisdiction of the Cavite Court of the First Instance.

Getting to Source

KEOKUK, Iowa (UP)—Charles Fugate and Cal Frenling got in a boat Friday intent on making a study of the caddis fly. The boat turned over and sent the two men straight to the river bottom, which is where the caddis fly breeds. Fugate and Frenling said they weren't interested in going quite that far in the interests of entomology.
